

JOY RIDE TO-DAY WILL WIND UP BIG AUTO CARNIVAL

Everybody Will Motor to Hotel Gramatan, at Bronxville, for Night of Jollity.

QUEEN AT THEATRE.

With Retinue She Is Guest at Lincoln Square—The Hill Climbing Contest.

All roads will lead to Hotel Gramatan, Bronxville, to-day, so far as the celebration of the first automobile carnival of history are concerned, for the great "Joy Ride" of the autists is headed that way all this afternoon.

A sumptuous Lannin dinner will be served at 7.30 o'clock. There will be impromptu speeches, and Col. K. C. Pardee may be induced to tell how the clever police traffic men cut his mile string of Maxwell into about thirty sections in the great illuminated parade Tuesday night. There will be dancing for the younger set at 9 o'clock, and high jinks until morning, when the home run of the joy party will be made.

Everybody worth while, from the automobile standpoint, was at Blaney's Lincoln Square Theatre last evening, where Queen Joan, of the carnival, was the guest of honor at a mammoth theatre party to witness the presentation of Belasco and De Mille's "The Wife," with Edna May Spooner, who ran a creditable race with Mrs. Cunee for the Queen's diadem, in the leading role, and Augustus Phillips as the Senator-husband.

The pretty playhouse was jammed by an enthusiastic crowd long before the curtain rose on the first act.

Mrs. Cunee and her party arrived early and were greeted by Mrs. Mary Gibbs Spooner, manager of the Spooner company and head of the committee in charge of the reception. The Queen and her party were placed in the right-hand stage box, which was lavishly decorated with bunting, flags and flowers.

Cheers for the Queen. As the Queen, with her husband, Banker Andrew Cunee, entered the royal box they were cheered to the echo, Her Majesty bowing her acknowledgments.

The royal party overflowed into two other boxes, and another was filled with a bevy of dainty sophomores from Wadleigh High School, in Harlem, the Queen's retinue including Mrs. G. B. Raffetto and the Misses Louise and Gwendolyn Raffetto, Miss Lola Ford and Messrs. Louis Diabrow, Douglas Diabrow and Mr. Gilbert, of Richmond Hill, L. I.; Mr. Cunee and Misses Ethel R. Dayton, Margery Keller and Ruth Zumota.

Delta Chapter, Order of the Evening Star, was present, with seventy-five members.

At the end of the first act, in response to prolonged cheers, Miss Edna May Spooner, star of the company, came before the curtain and delivered a clever little speech, substantially as follows:

"I am delighted to extend our greetings to the Queen of the Automobile Carnival. When distinguished artists return from abroad they tell with pride and pleasure of having appeared before the reigning monarchs of foreign countries. But it is not often that we have that opportunity in America. I am very happy to-night to have the honor of greeting the reigning Queen of New York City, Queen Joan, who, by virtue of her 280,000 votes, stands ahead of all other competitors for the honor. The Evening World, through whose energetic efforts the first automobile carnival was brought to a successful issue, and which paper undertook and carried to a wonderful success the election of a king and queen of the carnival, counting and deserving more than twenty votes, stands ahead of all other competitors for the honor. The Evening World, through whose energetic efforts the first automobile carnival was brought to a successful issue, and which paper undertook and carried to a wonderful success the election of a king and queen of the carnival, counting and deserving more than twenty votes, stands ahead of all other competitors for the honor. The Evening World, through whose energetic efforts the first automobile carnival was brought to a successful issue, and which paper undertook and carried to a wonderful success the election of a king and queen of the carnival, counting and deserving more than twenty votes, stands ahead of all other competitors for the honor."

The Queen bowed her bustling acknowledgments and approval, and later, from the audience, in a "speech" from Mrs. Spooner, the only woman manager in New York, that lady, beaming with happiness, stepped down the stage and warmly complimented her daughter's successful rival, and congratulated her on her successful reign, bidding her in behalf of that wonderful band, "the Spoonerites and Spoonerettes," for giving them an opportunity to greet her.

At the close of the play Mrs. Cunee and her party held a reception in Miss Spooner's dressing-room.

Hill-Climbing Contest.

In the presence of nearly 15,000 people, fifty-seven automobiles literally took wings yesterday afternoon on Fort Washington avenue and tore uphill at highest speed. The occasion was the hill climbing contest in connection with the Automobile Carnival, and was the most successful ever held in America.

On the wind-swept hillside, clinging to trees or rocks, and unimpaired of the wintry blasts, men, women and children cheered the drivers from start to finish. The serpentine track, from under the Dykman street subway station to Fort Washington avenue to Amsterdam avenue, was lined on either side by enthusiastic hosts. Inspector McKinley and a hundred policemen had difficulty keeping the track clear.

The track was 130 feet long, and included the steepest hill in Manhattan. Altogether, eighty-one machines were entered, but only fifty-seven started. Every class of horse-drawn carriage tackled the hill, from the family doctor's buggy, guaranteed to "stand without hitching," to the motor cycle.

It comes. The White Steamer captured the chief honors, taking first and second in the ninth event, open to all sorts of machines, gasoline, steam or electric. The first car, driven by Walter White, climbed the hill in 32.5 seconds. White also drove a second car up the hill in 32.5 seconds. The Aperson gasoline car made the third best time of the day, climbing the hill in 38 seconds.

The winners and those scoring second were as follows:

COLLECTED ALMS IN SURGEON'S GARB

Charles Brownstein Accused of Soliciting Contributions from Charitable Persons.

DENIES THE CHARGE.

Court Puts Him Under $1,000 Bond While Inquiries Are Being Made.

For several weeks complaints have been coming to Gouverneur Hospital that a young man dressed like an ambulance surgeon and pretending to hail from that institution had been going about the east side, collecting alms on the pretense that the money would be used to help the poor Hebrews. Last night an ambulance from Gouverneur Hospital was going through Second avenue when Dr. Holte Kingsley, riding on the back of it, saw a young man in glasses, white duck trousers and a surgeon's cap coming out of a tenement near Seventh street. He got off the wagon and trailed the other man until he found Policeman McGowan, who, on Kingsley's complaint, locked up the suspect.

Today in the Yorkville Police Court the prisoner told Magistrate Harris he was Charles Brownstein, twenty years old, of No. 21 St. Mark's place. He said he had bought his cap from a boy, but Dr. Kingsley said Brownstein had been a patient at Gouverneur a few weeks ago and he thought it possible that Brownstein had stolen the cap from a life jacket that had been drawn by Dr. Rosen, a Grand street merchant. He said he had been collecting alms but was going to turn the money over to the hospital people as soon as the sum grew to what he regarded as a sensible dimension. But the Magistrate made it a $1,000 bond while the police are inquiring further into the matter and the disinterestedness of young Mr. Brownstein's motives.
